Confidential Settlement Reached on Behalf of Brain-Damaged 13-Year-Old Girl Who Also Suffered an Amputation

Our clients took their daughter, who was diagnosed with bronchitis, to the emergency room when she spiked a 105 fever. In the emergency room, she was diagnosed with pneumonia. Concerned with sepsis, an echocardiogram was ordered. Three days after it was performed – and while the child’s condition was worsening – it was read as normal.

In reality, the echocardiogram showed vegetation in the right ventricle of the heart – a diagnosis that requires immediate medical treatment. Because of her worsening condition, the parents arranged for their daughter to be transported to a tertiary center children’s hospital for critical care, where it was discovered the original echocardiogram was misread and that the left and right ventricles now had vegetation. Despite emergency treatment, the child suffered clots throughout her body resulting in a massive stroke and amputation of her left leg.

After three years of investigation and litigation, which included more than 100 doctors and 20 expert witnesses, Partner Nancy La Vista, Attorney Michael S. Smith and the medical malpractice team at Clark Fountain resolved the case for a confidential amount. The settlement will provide financial security for the young girl and her family and allow her to continue to receive proper medical care for the rest of her life.

to over a billion dollars recovered for our clients.

Confidential Settlement Reached in Negligent Security Case After a Truck Driver Sustains Two Gunshot Wounds During a Robbery

Our client, a professional truck driver from the Tampa, Florida area, was transporting FEMA supplies from Georgia to North Carolina for Hurricane Florence relief. He stopped to purchase fuel at a truck stop in Georgia. While inside the truck stop, two unidentified individuals attempted to rob the cash registers. Our client was shot twice in the chest and right arm.

Attorney Ben J. Whitman was hired to investigate a potential negligent security claim against the owners and operators of the truck stop and was able to resolve the case prior to the filing of a lawsuit with a confidential settlement agreement. The settlement will cover the client's medical costs, lost wages, and compensate our client for his physical and psychological injuries sustained.
